WHAT IS A SCHOOL OF PUBLIC HEALTH ?

Notes Harvard School of Public Health Yearbook, 1971-1972

Individual pictures and data were included for:

1. Students newly registered at the school in Sept., '71 or Jan.,'72.
2. Other students who submitted pictures and/or information, thereby expressing an interest in being included.

Because of the late date at which the yearbook was begun, no attempt was made to include other groups, and efforts to track down those who did not come to have portraits or fill out information forms were minimal.

The aim of the covers and first few pages was to portray what was for many of us and for the school a year of questioning. The deliberations of the Bok Committee and experiences of class members leave no doubt that the queries in bold type are real. After nine months of sharing questions, we now leave to provide our part of the answers. From my own point of view at least, this was the essence of the year here and therefore as important to adumbrate in the yearbook as the usual record of extracurricular activites.

The book could not have been produced without the help of:

Larry Grabhorn--photography
Susanne Menzel--data collection and typing
Matt Liang--sales
John Marr--sales
Charlie Hennekins--typing

Photographs were contributed by Rice Leach (inside front cover, bottom) and Larry Grabhorn (page 1, bottom right, and a number of portraits). Most of the individual portraits were kindly lent by Miss Laskey.

The effort of putting the book together will be worthwhile if the addresses in the last pages help to bring us together in the future.
